Teaching Psychology in America: A History

Edited by Antonio E. Puente, Janet R. Matthews,
and Charles L. Brewer

American Psychological Association
Washington, DC
Contributors ........................................................................................................... xiii
Foreword Charles D. Spielberger ................................................................. xvii
Preface Antonio E. Puente, Janet R. Matthews, and Charles L. Brewer .......... xvi
Introduction Antonio E. Puente, Janet R. Matthews, and Charles L. Brewer .......... 1
I. General Issues in the Teaching of Psychology ........................................ 9
   Introduction Antonio E. Puente ................................................................. 11
   Chapter 1. Evolution of Undergraduate Curricula in Psychology, 1892–1992 ........................................... 13
      Thomas V. McGovern
      Three Institutional Parameters Affecting the Undergraduate Curriculum .......... 15
      Psychology in the Academic Shopping Center ........................................ 23
      Conclusion .................................................................................................. 31
      Mark E. Ware
      Status .............................................................................................................. 39
Antecedents ........................................ 43
Strategies: A Case Study .................. 58
Conclusion ........................................ 63
Appendix: Selected Readings for Career Development in Psychology .......... 69

Chapter 3. The Socratic–Sophistic Continuum in Teaching Psychology and Psychological Research in America ....................... 71
John J. Freely
Interpretation: Basic Distinctions and Terms ........................................ 72
Application of the Interpretation to the History of Teaching Psychology in America .................. 79
Some Caveats and an Envoi .................. 86

Chapter 4. International Development of Psychology as an Academic Discipline ........ 89
Helio Carpiniero
The Growth of European Psychology ........ 91
Psychology in Other Countries ............... 110
Conclusion ........................................ 115

II. Key Individuals in the Teaching of Psychology ...................... 123
Introduction Antonio E. Puente ............... 125

Chapter 5. Psychologists as Teachers: Sketches Toward a History of Teaching During 100 Years of American Psychology ................. 127
Donald A. Dewsbury and Wade E. Pickren
What Is an Outstanding Teacher? .......... 129
Some Idiosyncratic Approaches to Teaching ........................................ 145
Conclusion ........................................ 146

Chapter 6. A Brief History of the American Psychological Foundation’s Award for Distinguished Teachers of Psychology .................. 153
David J. Pittenger
History of the American Psychological Foundation Teaching Award .......... 154
Categories of Awards ......................... 155
Chapter 11. Education and Training Conferences in Graduate Education ........................................ 285

  Cynthia Belar
  Psychology Prior to 1960 ........................................ 286
  Psychology: 1960s and 1970s ............................... 288
  Psychology After 1980 ........................................... 292
  Conclusion ....................................................... 297

Chapter 12. Conferences on Internship and Postdoctoral Training ........................................ 301

  Cynthia Belar
  Internship Conferences ........................................ 301
  Postdoctoral Education and Training .......................... 305
  Conferences .................................................... 307
  Conferences After the 1987 Gainesville Conference ........ 307
  Conclusion ..................................................... 308

Chapter 13. Regional Conferences for Teachers and Students of Psychology .......................... 311

  Stephen F. Davis and Randolph A. Smith
  Regional Teaching Conferences .................................. 312
  Regional Student Psychology Conferences .................... 317
  Conclusion ..................................................... 322

IV. Organized Psychology in Advancing the Teaching of Psychology ........................................ 325

    Introduction Janet R. Matthews ............................. 327

Chapter 14. The American Psychological Association and the Teaching of Psychology, 1892–1945 .... 329

  C. James Goodwin
  APA Activities Related to Teaching .......................... 330
  Conclusion ..................................................... 339

  Paul D. Nelson and George Stricker
  Organized Psychology Reorganizes ........................... 346
  Advancement of Teaching ...................................... 348
  Reorganization Again, With a Focus on Teaching .............. 358
  The Future .................................................... 360
Chapter 16. Division in Search of Self: A History of APA Division 2, the Division of the Teaching of Psychology ........................................ 365
Randall D. Wight and Stephen F. Davis
Prologue, Conception, and Early Development: 1944–1950 .......... 366
Identity Formation: 1951–1959 .............................................. 369
Character Development: 1960–1974 ......................................... 375
Character Refinement: 1975–1986 ............................................ 377

Chapter 17. A Quartet of Councils Interested in the Teaching of Psychology .................................................. 385
Randolph A. Smith
Council of Teachers of Undergraduate Psychology ................. 386
Council of Undergraduate Psychology Programs .................. 389
Council of Applied Master's Programs in Psychology ........... 391
Council of Graduate Departments of Psychology ................. 394
Conclusion ........................................................................... 397
Appendix A: Council of Teachers of Undergraduate Psychology (CTUP) Presidents and Membership Size .................. 401
Appendix B: Chairs of the Council of Graduate Departments of Psychology (COGDOP) ................................. 402

Chapter 18. Psi Chi and Psi Beta: The Two National Honor Societies in Psychology ........................................ 403
Ruth Hubbard Cousins, Carol Tracy, and Peter J. Giordano
A History of Psi Chi ............................................................ 404
A History of Psi Beta ............................................................ 421
Two Promising Futures ......................................................... 427

V. Key Publications in the Teaching of Psychology .......... 429
Introduction Charles L. Brewer ............................................. 431
Chapter 19. Teaching of Psychology, the Journal .......... 433
  Robert S. Daniel
    Germinal Period .......... 433
    Embryonic Period .......... 434
    Fetal Period .......... 435
    Prenatal Period .......... 439
    Neonatal Period .......... 440
    Childhood .......... 442
    Adolescence .......... 447
    And on Into Adulthood .......... 450

Chapter 20. Portraits of a Discipline: An Examination of Introductory Psychology Textbooks in America .......... 453
  Wayne Weiten and Randall D. Wight
    How Introductory Texts Evolved: A Chronological Overview .......... 454
    How Introductory Texts Evolved: Empirical Comparisons .......... 474
    Conclusion .......... 487
    Appendix: Description of Text Variables .......... 503

  James L. Pate
    Definitions .......... 506
    Functions .......... 509
    Types of Handbooks .......... 510
    Conclusion .......... 515
    Appendix: Other Handbooks Not Cited in This Chapter .......... 520

Chapter 22. * Constancy and Change: Teaching as Depicted in Psychology Journals* .......... 525
  Bernard C. Beins
    Psychology Students and Teachers .......... 527
    The Classroom .......... 536
    The Subject Matter of Psychology .......... 540
    Conclusion .......... 545

Index .......... 553
About the Editors .......... 577